CHAPTER 1: GENERAL PROVISIONS

ART. 1. ON THE APPLICATION OF THE HANDBOOK

All participants of the United Nations Model of Colegio Monterrosales Homeschool are required to abide by the rules of this handbook. This includes delegates, chair boards, the protocol corps, and model authorities. If a situation not covered by the handbook arises, it will be evaluated by the Secretary General and the Academic Secretary together with the faculty. Anyone who participates in MRBMUN, whether in virtual or in-person format, automatically agrees to be governed by the provisions of this handbook and acknowledges having read it.

ART. 2. OBJECTIVE OF MRBMUN

The main objective of MRBMUN is to create an experience that simulates the workings of the various committees managed by the United Nations, along with others of a special nature (covering fictional, philosophical, or historical topics), or belonging to different national and international bodies around the world. Participants are expected to debate topics of general interest, draft solutions, engage in debate exercises, and represent the official position of their assigned country or character.

ART. 3. OFFICIAL LANGUAGES

The official languages of the model are the following:

Spanish: As the main and official language, communication among participants — including general debate and official documents — must be conducted in Spanish, except for committees whose main language is English. Anglo-Saxon terminology is permitted as long as the terms are of public interest and general knowledge.

English: As the secondary language, its use should be reserved exclusively for committees whose established main language is English. Spanish may not be used in committees where English is the primary language.

Exceptions: The use of a language not recognized as an official language of the model will only be accepted if used briefly to identify the delegate (such as during roll call) or in speeches for specific words, in a way that any delegate who does not speak that language can understand it without requiring additional translations. Chair boards reserve the right to ask the delegate using this resource for an exact translation of the phrase or word used.

ART. 4. REQUIREMENTS TO PARTICIPATE

Participants (delegates) must meet the following requirements to take part in the model:

1. Be at least 12 years of age and be enrolled in at least seventh grade in the Colombian educational system (equivalent to first year of high school in the Venezuelan system and first year of secondary school in the Mexican system).
2. Be at most 21 years of age and be enrolled in at most the second year of a university degree program.

3. Have completed the MRBMUN registration payment.

CHAPTER 2: MODEL AUTHORITIES

ART. 5. MONTERROSALES BOARD OF DIRECTORS

The faculty of Colegio Monterrosales Homeschool and its academic sponsors act as the highest authority of the model. Their duty is to ensure its proper functioning, supervise other authorities, extend invitations, validate participation certificates, and issue awards.

Their functions are:

1. Supervise the correct functioning of the model.
2. Supervise the conduct of the model's authorities.
3. Send invitations to delegations.
4. Manage administrative matters of the institution that concern the model.
5. Revoke positions or impose sanctions when necessary.
6. Support the other authorities.
7. Certify the participation and awards of delegates.

ART. 6. SECRETARY GENERAL

The Secretary General is the highest authority of MRBMUN after the Monterrosales Board of Directors. It is composed of at most one person who holds the responsibility of directing, coordinating, and ensuring proper compliance with the model's guidelines and objectives. They must also ensure the proper functioning of each committee and the well-being of delegates and other bodies of the event.

Their functions are:

1. Coordinate and supervise the other authorities of the model, ensuring proper fulfillment of their duties.
2. Represent MRBMUN at official events within and outside the model.
3. Ensure compliance with the principles and values established by the Handbook.
4. Manage communication with invited delegations.
5. Manage communication with the authorities of Colegio Monterrosales Homeschool.
6. Resolve conflicts and make decisions in exceptional cases.
7. Preside over the opening and closing ceremonies of the model.
8. Supervise chair boards to ensure their proper functioning.
9. Moderate committees when necessary.
10. Facilitate negotiations between delegates.
11. Permit or deny the use of different types of tools during the course of a committee.
12. Serve on the resolution document approval board for each committee.
13. Temporarily delegate their authority to the Academic Secretary when necessary.
14. Validate with their signature the approved resolution documents, participation certificates, and awards.

ART. 7. ACADEMIC SECRETARY

The Academic Secretary is responsible for ensuring the quality of the academic content presented throughout the model and that governs all MRBMUN committees.

Their functions are:

1. Design and supervise the academic content present in the various MRBMUN committees.
2. Organize training sessions for delegates, chair boards, and other model members on educational topics related to the subject being addressed, when necessary.
3. Evaluate the performance of delegates and coordinate the delivery of awards and recognitions.
4. Keep a historical archive of all topics addressed in every committee, to be preserved for future editions of MRBMUN and used when necessary.
5. Moderate committees when necessary.
6. Serve on the resolution document approval board for each committee.
7. Validate with their signature the approved resolution documents, participation certificates, and awards.

ART. 8. LOGISTICS SECRETARY

The Logistics Secretary is responsible for planning and organizing the physical, digital, and technical resources necessary for the proper functioning of the model.

Their functions are:

1. Manage the availability of spaces for in-person editions.
2. Ensure the correct functioning of digital spaces for virtual editions.
3. Create and supervise the event schedule.
4. Resolve logistical problems.
5. Ensure that participant registrations have been completed and, in the case of in-person editions, ensure the delivery of the respective accreditations.

ART. 9. PRESS AND COMMUNICATIONS SECRETARY

The Press and Communications Secretary is responsible for connecting all event participants, creating content related to the event, and documenting the most important moments of each committee.

Their functions are:

1. Manage MRBMUN's social media accounts.
2. Design and distribute promotional materials.
3. Cover the event through photos and videos.
4. Manage communications with external media outlets.

ART. 10. HEAD OF ALUMNI

The Head of Alumni is responsible for supervising and supporting university delegates and their delegations, facilitating their participation in committees.

Their functions are:

1. Supervise university delegates present in the MRBMUN edition.
2. Support university delegates throughout the model.
3. Lead the university delegates of MRBMUN.
4. Establish direct contact with invited university delegations.
5. Extend invitations to university delegations in association with the Monterrosales Board of Directors.

CHAPTER 3: COMMITTEE COMPOSITION

ART. 11. CHAIR (PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD)

The chair is the principal moderator of the committee. They are responsible for reviewing official position papers, advising delegates, and imposing sanctions when necessary.

Their functions are:

1. Moderate the committee.
2. Review official position papers.
3. Review resolution documents.
4. Correct and approve documents.
5. Serve on the resolution document approval board for the committee.
6. Issue warnings when necessary.
7. Evaluate delegate performance and coordinate the delivery of awards and recognitions.
8. Facilitate negotiations between delegates.
9. Validate with their signature the approved resolution documents, participation certificates, and awards.
10. Record delegate participation.
11. Provide feedback to delegates and their faculty advisors.
12. Open a lobby (to provide general feedback to the entire committee, temporarily deactivating the committee as such).

ART. 12. VICE CHAIR (VICE PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD)

The vice chair holds the same powers as the chair, with the difference that their focus is more on document review and participation recording than on moderation.

Their functions are:

1. Moderate the committee.
2. Review official position papers.
3. Review resolution documents.

4. Correct and approve documents.
5. Serve on the resolution document approval board for the committee.
6. Issue warnings when necessary.
7. Evaluate delegate performance and coordinate the delivery of awards and recognitions.
8. Facilitate negotiations between delegates.
9. Validate with their signature the approved resolution documents, participation certificates, and awards.
10. Record delegate participation.
11. Provide feedback to delegates and their faculty advisors.
12. Open a lobby (to provide general feedback to the entire committee, temporarily deactivating the committee as such).

ART. 13. MODERATORS

When a committee has a moderator, they act as an adjunct vice chair alongside the vice chair and chair, holding the same powers as both:

1. Moderate the committee.
2. Review official position papers.
3. Review resolution documents.
4. Correct and approve documents.
5. Serve on the resolution document approval board for the committee.
6. Issue warnings when necessary.
7. Evaluate delegate performance and coordinate the delivery of awards and recognitions.
8. Facilitate negotiations between delegates.
9. Validate with their signature the approved resolution documents, participation certificates, and awards.
10. Record delegate participation.
11. Provide feedback to delegates and their faculty advisors.
12. Open a lobby (to provide general feedback to the entire committee, temporarily deactivating the committee as such).

ART. 14. CRISIS STAFF

The Crisis Staff is responsible for providing updates in crisis committees and, when necessary, creating crises in regular committees.

Their functions are:

1. Update the results of delegate directives in crisis mode.
2. Organize and deliver chamber resources.
3. Organize and deliver each delegate's personal resources.
4. Execute the crisis outcome update.
5. Create crises in regular committees when requested by the chairs.
6. Award information points to delegates with each update.

ART. 15. DELEGATES

Delegates are the principal participants of the model and are responsible for maintaining the pace of debate and drafting resolution documents.

Their functions are:

1. Accurately represent the position of their assigned country or character with respect to the topic.
2. Maintain an active and respectful debate.
3. Follow the instructions of the chairs and other model authorities.
4. Draft official position papers before the model begins and present them to the board when required by their committee.
5. Draft resolution documents.

ART. 16. FACULTY ADVISOR

The Faculty Advisor is the representative of a delegation's delegates. Their role is to supervise the conduct and performance of their delegates and the chair boards, request feedback from the chairs, and provide recommendations to model authorities. A maximum of four faculty advisors are permitted per delegation.

Their functions are:

1. Enter any committee of the model at any time (except during closed proceedings, in which case the board must notify the faculty advisor whether they may enter).
2. Supervise their assigned delegates, correct their conduct when necessary, listen to their concerns, and communicate them to model authorities.
3. Request feedback from chair boards regarding their delegates.
4. Provide feedback to model authorities regarding its overall functioning.

CHAPTER 4: SESSION DYNAMICS

ART. 17. QUORUM

The chair board will declare the session open when quorum exists, meaning when at least one-third of the committee is present at the time of roll call. This is required for the session to be properly managed. Roll call must be conducted at the start of each session in order to declare quorum and open the session.

ART. 18. FLOOR MANAGEMENT

The chair will open the forum for delegates to establish their points and motions. If no points or motions are raised, the next delegate on the speakers' list will be called upon in regular committees; in special committees, the chair will ask which delegate wishes to take the floor and grant them speaking time.

ART. 19. DIPLOMATIC NOTE (PROTOCOL PAPER)

A diplomatic note is a short memo in which delegates may write messages (in a strictly formal manner) and send them to other delegates or to the chair board. Delegates may also use them to request points from the board.

ART. 20. DIRECT CONTACT

Contact between delegates while others are debating is restricted. To make use of direct contact, a delegate must submit a personal privilege point via diplomatic note to the chair board and await their approval.

ART. 21. SPEAKERS' LIST

The speakers' list is opened through a motion to open the speakers' list, which applies exclusively to regular committees. It must be opened at the start of the first session of each topic. Delegates who wish to be added initially will raise their placards; thereafter, if they wish to be added again, they must do so via a personal privilege point submitted by diplomatic note.

ART. 22. CONTINUOUS MODERATED CAUCUS

In special committees, a continuous moderated caucus is used. This establishes a dynamic in which delegates may raise their placard for the board to select the next speaker, without depending on a speakers' list.

ART. 23. YIELDING THE FLOOR

Delegates may yield their remaining speaking time to questions, to comments, or to another delegate of their choosing. Should a delegate choose not to exercise this option, the remaining time shall be yielded to the chair board by default.

ART. 24. PERMISSIONS

Permissions are used to carry out certain actions during a question.

The permissions used are:

- Permission for preamble: Requested to reference part of a delegate's speech during a question.
- Permission for subsequent: Requested to ask a follow-up question following the initial question.

ART. 25. POINTS

Points are interventions made by delegates to establish a specific action in the committee. They may generally be used at any time during debate or even via diplomatic notes, except for the parliamentary inquiry point, which must be raised exclusively when the floor is open.

The points to be used in MRBMUN are:

1. Point of Personal Privilege: Used to request an action of personal benefit for the delegate.
2. Point of Order: Used to call the attention of the chair board when a delegate or the board itself takes an improper action or fails to follow committee procedures.
3. Point of Parliamentary Inquiry: Used to ask the chair board a question of general interest regarding the committee.
4. Point of Information (Regulars): Used exclusively when the Working Paper is presented to ask submitters questions about it.
5. Point of Information (Crisis): Used exclusively in crisis committees to ask the Crisis Staff questions about an update that was made. This point is granted by Crisis Staff, unless submitted via personal privilege point to request one last information point. Points of information implicitly include the permission for preamble and subsequent, so these do not need to be separately requested.
6. Point of Information (British Parliament): Used exclusively in British Parliament, after the first minute and before the last minute of a speaker's speech, to ask questions. The speaker may accept or decline; if declined, 15 seconds must pass before another point of information may be submitted.

ART. 26. MOTIONS

Motions are interventions made by delegates requesting a specific action in the committee. Procedural motions must always be seconded by another delegate who agrees and put to a vote. To raise a motion, the delegate raises their placard when the floor is open; the chair board must grant the delegate the floor (unless it is a precedence motion), and the delegate must state the motion they wish to raise.

The motions used in MRBMUN are:

1. Motion to Open the Speakers' List: Used to open the speakers' list at the start of the first session of each topic, after which delegates raise their placards to be added in the order the board determines.
2. Motion to Extend Speaker's Time: Used to extend the speaker's time (initially one minute) to whatever duration the delegate proposes and the board approves.
3. Motion to Open an Extraordinary Questions Session: Used to open a round of questions directed at a delegate who has just delivered a speech.
4. Motion to Open a Formal Discussion: Used to initiate a face-to-face debate between two delegates (discussions between three or more are not permitted), following a speech. Standard duration is one minute, with possible extension to one and a half minutes; to extend further, a motion to extend the formal discussion must be used.
5. Motion to Open a Moderated Caucus: Used to establish, for a limited time, a modality in which each delegate (selected by the board upon raising their placard following the previous speaker) delivers a brief speech. As a procedural motion, it must be seconded and voted upon. The delegate making the motion must state the desired duration and purpose, and may choose to speak first or last. If they choose first, the seconding delegate speaks second; if they choose last, the seconding delegate speaks first. Delegates may request an extension via a motion to extend the moderated caucus.

6. Motion to Open an Unmoderated Caucus: Used to temporarily suspend the standard committee procedure to allow delegates to draft official documents without needing to take the floor; delegates may also discuss agendas and use relatively informal language, provided it remains respectful. As a procedural motion, it must be seconded and voted upon. The delegate making the motion must state the desired duration and purpose. Extensions may be requested via a motion to extend the simple caucus.
7. Motion to Open a Round Robin: Used for all delegates to deliver a brief speech on the current situation in order from left to right as they are seated. As a procedural motion, it must be seconded and voted upon.
8. Motion to Open a Cabinet Consultation: Used to allow the speaking delegate to yield the floor to a delegate of their choice until the board requests that moderation be returned. As a procedural motion, it must be seconded and voted upon. The delegate making the motion must yield moderation to the delegate who seconded it.
9. Right of Reply: May only be used if the chair board determines that a delegation has been explicitly offended. The right of reply is not commonly used in order to keep debate moving. If a delegate wishes to use it, they must submit a diplomatic note.
10. Motion to Introduce an Audiovisual Material: Used in regular committees to present a project through PowerPoint, Prezi, Canva, or similar presentations.
11. Motion to Introduce a Working Paper: Used by delegates once the resolution document for regular committees (working paper) is ready and corrected. When this motion is made, the signatories present the working paper to the other delegates; it is put to a vote and approved or rejected by majority.
12. Motion to Introduce an Amendment: Used to propose a modification to the working paper, which is then put to a vote.
13. Motion to Divide the Question: Used to isolate a point from the working paper; must be put to a vote.
14. Motion to Close the Session: Used to close the session. As a procedural motion, it must be seconded and voted upon; however, the chair board may close the session by office when necessary.
15. Motion of Precedence: The only motion that can interrupt another motion. It consists of a delegate raising a motion of higher priority for the committee. The hierarchy is as follows:

1. Point of Personal Privilege.

2. Point of Order.
  3. Point of Parliamentary Inquiry.
  4. Motion to Close the Session (only if the session is already about to end).
  5. Motion to Extend a Previously Established Motion.
  6. Motion to Open an Extraordinary Questions Session.
  7. Motion to Open a Formal Discussion.
  8. Motion to Introduce (a document).
  9. Motion to Open a Moderated Caucus, Simple Caucus, or other procedural motions.
  10. All other motions.
16. Motion to Introduce a directive: Used exclusively in crisis committees or, when applicable, during crises in regular committees. Used for the signatories of a directive to present it before the rest of the committee, put it to a vote, and approve or reject it.
  17. Motion to Introduce an Official Communiqué: Used exclusively in crisis committees or, when applicable, during crises in regular committees. Used for the signatories of an official communiqué to present it before the rest of the committee, put it to a vote, and approve or reject it.
  18. Motion to Introduce the final directive: Used by delegates once the final directive has been drafted and approved by the chair board, in order to put it to a vote and approve or reject it. This motion is used exclusively in crisis committees.
  19. Motion to Introduce the Manifesto: Used by delegates in the Political-Philosophical Modality to introduce their manifestos.
  20. Motion to open a topic: Used to select which topic to open in a committee where there are several.

CHAPTER 5: MODALITIES

ART. 27. REGULAR MODALITY

The regular modality is the primary modality used by most MRBMUN committees. In the majority of cases, delegates represent nations, or alternatively organizations, and debate topics of relevance to their respective committees. The final document to be drafted is a working paper presenting the agreed-upon solutions. Delegates must refer to themselves and to one another in the third person. The order of participation is determined by the speakers' list, which must be opened at the start of each topic. If a delegate wishes to be added to the speakers' list after it has been established, they must do so via a personal privilege point submitted by diplomatic note. Delegates must send the chair board an official position paper before or during the first session.

On the Official Position Paper (OPP):

The official position paper is a mandatory document to be submitted by all delegates in the regular modality. It must include all relevant data about the country, along with the nation's position on the topic and proposed solutions. The format is available in the corresponding Google Drive folder and must be sent to the chair's email address before or during the first working session. Failure to submit will result in a warning.

On the Working Paper:

The working paper, as the final document in the regular modality, must be drafted throughout the sessions. One working paper must be produced per topic. Multiple working papers may be drafted on the same topic (by dividing into two blocs), though ultimately only one prevails (the one approved by majority vote). The working paper must be presented by delegates through a motion to introduce a working paper and must have three signatories chosen by the committee for its presentation. The format uses points and sub-points:

Format:

1. Solution 1 (idea)

- 1.1. With what objective.
- 1.2. How.
- 1.3. When.
- 1.4. Where.
- 1.5. With what resources.
- 1.6. Which countries support this solution.

Each solution must follow this structure. The order of sub-points may vary depending on delegate needs, and new sub-points may be added. If the working paper is not submitted, or if it is rejected by a majority of delegates and no alternate approved working paper exists, the topic will be declared failed. In committees where the right of veto exists, delegates holding this right (the United States, Russia, China, France, and the United Kingdom) may exercise it by arguing why the document should be vetoed, thus nullifying the working paper. If no alternate approved working paper exists, the topic will be declared failed.

ART. 28. CRISIS MODALITY

The crisis modality is the primary modality of crisis committees. Delegates primarily represent a character and address the proposed crisis through directives. These directives must be corrected and approved by the board beforehand and put to a vote in the case of public directives. Private directives must be sent to the board, who will correct and approve them; the delegate must then resend the approved directive to the board when they wish it to be executed. As the crisis progresses, delegates must draft a final directive during the last sessions to be presented in the final session and submitted to the Crisis Staff, who are responsible for executing crisis updates throughout the committee. As a more flexible modality, first-person language is permitted (variable to third person if an organization is present within the committee), and less formal language is permitted (provided it is not disrespectful or offensive).

On Directives:

Directives are the documents drafted by delegates throughout the committee. Each directive drafted, corrected, approved, and voted upon will positively or negatively influence the crisis. The format is as follows:

- Directive Name
- Privacy: (Public or Private)
- Signatories: (Minimum 1, maximum 3 if public; minimum 1, maximum 2 if private)
- 1. What will be done.
  - .1. With what objective.
  - .2. How.
  - .3. When.
  - .4. Where.
  - .5. With what resources.
  - .6. Contingency directive.

The order of sub-points may vary depending on delegate needs. Directives must be submitted to the chair board for correction. Once the board approves the directive, the signatories must raise a motion to introduce a directive to present the directive to the rest of the committee and put it to a vote for approval or rejection. In the case of private directives, the directive is simply corrected and approved by the board, and the delegate must resubmit it when they wish it to be executed.

On Official Communiqués:

Official communiqués are documents drafted in the crisis modality. Their purpose is to communicate a specific message to a designated audience. Their format is as follows:

- Communiqué Name:
- Date:
- Method of Transmission:
- Brief Introduction
- Message:
- Closing:

Delegates must present their official communiqués through a motion to introduce an official communiqué. The communiqué must first be corrected and approved by the board, then put to a vote; upon committee approval, it will be sent to the Crisis Staff. An official communiqué may be attached to a directive; in that case, the communiqué is approved through the motion to introduce a directive.

On the Final Directive:

The final directive is the final document to be presented by crisis delegates in the model's last session. It must address the main crisis and any crises introduced throughout the committee that have not yet been resolved. It consists of several directives combined into a single document and divided into blocs, maintaining the points and sub-points format. Three signatories must be chosen by the committee to present the final directive. It must be presented through a motion to introduce the final directive after being corrected and approved by the board, and must be put to a vote. If the directive is not completed by the last session or is not approved by a majority of the committee, the crisis will be declared failed and the resolution presented at the closing ceremony will be catastrophic.

Bicameral/Multicameral Modality:

The bicameral/multicameral modality is a sub-modality of crisis committees. It consists of facing two or more factions whose directives must be directed at defeating the other chamber(s). It operates like a standard crisis but with direct confrontation between chambers. At the end, the chamber that produced the best directives to counter the opposing chamber will be declared the winner in the resolution presented at the closing ceremony.

ART. 29. POLITICAL-PHILOSOPHICAL MODALITY

The political-philosophical modality is a format in which delegates debate ideological positions on different topics. In the first session, the foundational aspects of the topic are usually discussed; then, different points about the main topic are addressed (developing one sub-topic per session). Over time, delegates must compile their ideas into a manifesto. Once positions have been established and manifestos completed, they are introduced through a motion to introduce a manifesto. This motion allows the delegate to present their manifesto before a panel (normally the MRBMUN faculty). After presenting their ideas, the panel poses questions to the delegate, and once the delegate has answered, the panel decides whether to approve or reject the manifesto.

On the Manifesto:

The manifesto must be drafted by each delegate throughout the committee, with one manifesto per topic. The structure is as follows:

- Title: Consisting of the name of the topic combined with the character's vision and objective.
- Table of Chapters
- Glossary: Structured with all definitions of important concepts under the delegate's line of thinking, plus contextualizing examples of each (minimum 2 when applicable).
- Introduction: Consisting of the vision of the proposed framework and the relationship between the defined concepts and the topic.
- Development Chapters of the Manifesto.
- Conclusion: Stating how what was previously developed impacts and changes, positively or negatively, the field that was addressed.

ART. 30. COURT MODALITY

The court modality is exclusive to court committees. It consists of a trial simulation. First, the litigating parties present their opening statements, and the magistrates ask questions about what was presented. A probationary phase follows, in which the litigating parties introduce evidence through documents, which the magistrates analyze. Subsequently, a group of witnesses and experts is brought forward (they must be provided by the litigating parties; if a party cannot bring anyone to represent them, they must notify the board, who will provide substitutes through the Crisis Staff at no registration cost). The magistrates may question witnesses and experts, though questions may be objected to by the litigating parties if improperly formulated. After the questioning phase, the accused is questioned using the same system as with witnesses/experts

(the defense must bring a person to represent the accused; if unable to do so, they must notify staff, who will provide a substitute). After the accused is questioned, the litigating parties deliver their closing statements and the magistrates pose final questions. The final verdict of the trial will be announced at the model's closing ceremony.

Objections:

Questions containing the following characteristics may be objected to by the litigating parties:

1. Irrelevant question: When the question is not relevant to the case.
  - Leading/Misleading question (Capciosa): When the question is formulated in such a way that the witness, expert, or accused is led into a compromising answer that benefits one of the parties.
  - Suggestive question: When the question induces the person being questioned to give a specific answer.
  - Repetitive question: When a question has already been posed and answered efficiently before.
  - Speculative question: When the person being questioned is asked to make suppositions.
  - Opinion question: When the person being questioned is asked to give a personal opinion.
  - Ambiguous question: When the question is unclear.
  - Argumentative question: When the party posing the question also makes a declaration.
  - Improper question: When the question is offensive.
  - Compound question: When the question contains multiple questions within it.

If a question is objected to, the party raising the question may submit a counter-objection to defend their question. The judge (chair) will decide whether the objection is sustained.

ART. 31. BRITISH PARLIAMENT

British Parliament consists of a more classical debate format, separate from the other modalities. Four chambers divided into two benches are presented, each chamber composed of two people, for a total of 8 debaters. Both sides of the debate are divided as follows:

Government Bench:

- Opening Government (Upper Chamber): Composed of the Prime Minister and Deputy Prime Minister.
- Closing Government (Lower Chamber): Composed of the Government Extension and the Government Whip.

Opposition Bench:

- Opening Opposition (Upper Chamber): Composed of the Leader of the Opposition and Deputy Leader of the Opposition.
- Closing Opposition (Lower Chamber): Composed of the Opposition Extension and the Opposition Whip.

Speeches last 7 minutes with a possible 15-second extension. Government benches must defend the announced motion while the opposition must critique it.

Preparation Time:

In Parliament, the motion is announced during the same session and 15 minutes of preparation time are given. Debaters may only communicate with members of their own bench.

Point of Information and Protected Time:

A point of information may be raised during a debater's speech to pose a question. The debater may accept or deny the request. If denied, no further point of information may be raised for 15 seconds. Points of information may not be raised during the first and last minute of a speech.

Ranking:

After each session, the chair boards will produce a ranking ordering debaters from worst to best within each bench. Positions are then averaged and factored into the awards process.

Definition of Motion in British Parliament:

In British Parliament, a motion is not something delegates request; rather, it is the term used to refer to the topics under discussion.

Types of Motion:

- Policy motions: The chamber is asked to analyze the implementation of a specific policy.
- Analysis motions: The chamber is asked to analyze a value judgment.
- Regret motions: The chamber questions whether the world would be a better place without the existence of ____.
- Actor motions: The cabinet is asked to establish what actions they would take if they held a certain role or power in a specific situation.

Chamber Clashes:

Chamber clashes are an evaluation criterion used by the board to analyze which arguments prevail and are the primary method for determining final rankings per session. The types of clashes are as follows:

- Horizontal Clash: Occurs between chambers of the same level (Upper vs. Upper, and Lower vs. Lower). The chamber presenting the most solid case and weightiest arguments wins.
- Diagonal Clash: Occurs between the Upper Chamber of one bench and the Lower Chamber of the rival bench. The Upper Chamber wins if its points survive refutation; otherwise, the Lower Chamber wins.
- Vertical Clash: Occurs between chambers of the same bench. The Lower Chamber's differentiation is evaluated; if arguments are the same, the Upper Chamber prevails for having presented them first.

Fallacies:

Debaters must avoid the use of logical fallacies, as the opposing bench may dismantle such arguments and the debater's score may be affected by the chair board. Fallacies to avoid include:

1. Hasty Generalization: Assuming something is always true based only on isolated or recurring cases.
2. Straw Man: Exaggerating or distorting the opponent's words in order to attack a position they did not actually take.
3. Red Herring: Introducing information that has no real bearing on the topic being debated.
4. False Cause (Post Hoc): Claiming that one event caused another simply because it occurred first, without explaining the connection.
5. Ad Hominem: Discrediting an argument by attacking the personality or characteristics of the person making it.
6. Appeal to Authority: Accepting something as true solely because it was stated by an important figure or institution.
7. Appeal to Ignorance: Maintaining that something is true simply because it has not been disproven.
8. Appeal to Emotion: Using feelings or compassion to persuade, ignoring objective facts.
9. Begging the Question (Circular Reasoning): Basing an argument on a premise that not everyone accepts as true.
10. False Dilemma: Presenting only two extreme options as if no middle ground or alternatives exist.

ART. 32. PRESS CORPS

The Press Corps is a modality in which delegates assume the role of correspondents. These correspondents are entrusted with the mandate of reporting on all proceedings taking place throughout the Model. Delegates shall be required to be present during roll call, at which time the chair board will assign them specific missions to cover and communicate the developments occurring within each of the MRBMUN committees. Following this, correspondents shall be permitted to leave their assigned committee and move freely across the various commissions in session, with the purpose of reporting through social media on the proceedings underway. Furthermore, correspondents shall be authorized to utilize unmoderated caucus time and special question sessions to pose direct questions to delegates from the different committees. In addition to the foregoing, they shall also have the authority to conduct interviews with delegates during recess periods.

CHAPTER 6: CODE OF CONDUCT AND DRESS CODE

ART. 33. WARNINGS AND SANCTIONS

A warning is a sanction issued to a delegate who commits an action in violation of the code of conduct or dress code. If the action is minor, a warning notice will be issued. Upon the third warning notice, an official warning will be issued. Upon the second official warning, the delegate will be asked to leave the session for 15 minutes. The third official warning will result in the delegate being ineligible for awards and required to leave the session. If a delegate's action is deemed serious, they may be expelled from the model. If an action is considered moderately serious, an official warning will be issued directly (without prior warning notices).

ART. 34. CODE OF CONDUCT

Any action that threatens the physical, moral, or emotional integrity of a person within MRBMUN will result in a warning and, depending on the severity, expulsion from the model. This also includes damage to MRBMUN's physical or virtual spaces.

ART. 35. ON THE USE OF ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE

The use of artificial intelligence is strictly prohibited in MRBMUN. If a delegate is found to have used artificial intelligence during the model, a warning notice will be issued, and if the behavior recurs, an official warning will be issued. The use of artificial intelligence in resolution documents within MRBMUN is strictly prohibited, and if detected, the document will be nullified.

ART. 36. INFORMALITY

Depending on the committee, informality may be used to a greater or lesser extent. However, if it exceeds the limit established by the chair board, the delegate will receive a verbal reprimand. If the conduct continues, a warning notice will be issued, and if unresolved, an official warning will be issued. The concept of informality includes the failure to use parliamentary language within the committee.

ART. 37. DRESS CODE

The dress code is essential for the proper functioning of the model. Attire representing different cultures is permitted; however, the following guidelines are strongly recommended:

For men:

Two-piece suit (trousers and jacket), dress shirt, tie (or bow tie) MANDATORY, and formal dress shoes. NOT PERMITTED: athletic shoes, t-shirts, casual clothing, jeans, leather garments.

For women:

Two-piece suit (jacket with trousers or skirt), formal dress, and formal shoes. NOT PERMITTED: low necklines, lace, sheer fabrics, skirts or dresses more than 5 fingers above the knee, open-toe shoes or heels, leather or faux-leather garments, jeans, spaghetti-strap tops, off-the-shoulder blouses, athletic shoes, sandals, knee-high boots.

If a participant is unable to comply with the dress code for reasons beyond their control, they must inform the model authorities.

CHAPTER 7: AWARDS

ART. 38. AWARDS BY COMMITTEE

Regular, crisis, and political-philosophical committees must award:

- 1 Best Delegate recognition.
- 1 Outstanding Delegate recognition.
- 2 Honorable Mentions.
- 3 Verbal Mentions.

Court modality committees must award:

- 1 Best Litigating Party recognition.
- 1 Best Magistrate recognition.
- 2 Honorable Mentions.
- 3 Verbal Mentions.

British Parliament must award:

- 1 Best Debater recognition.
- 1 Outstanding Debater recognition.
- 1 Honorable Mention.

Press Corps committee must award:

- 1 Best Correspondent Award.
- 1 Outstanding Correspondent Award.
- 1 Honourable Mention.

ART. 39. BEST DELEGATION AWARDS

Through committee awards, delegations whose delegates have performed best will be recognized. The following will be awarded:

- Best Small Delegation: Awarded to the delegation presenting between 3 and 6 delegates.
- Best Medium Delegation: Awarded to the delegation presenting between 7 and 12 delegates.
- Best Large Delegation: Awarded to the delegation presenting more than 12 delegates.

ART. 40. BEST CHAIR BOARD AWARD

The Best Chair Board award will be given to the board that receives the highest ratings in delegate feedback evaluations.

CHAPTER 8: VIRTUAL MODALITY MANAGEMENT

ART. 41. CLARIFICATION ON THE VIRTUAL MODALITY

The virtual modality will follow the same procedures, points, and motions as the in-person format, including the code of conduct and dress code.

ART. 42. ZOOM PLATFORM

The official platform for virtual MUNs will be Zoom. Delegates must connect at the established times and use the platform's features to participate:

- To request the floor, delegates must use the "Raise Hand" option only when the chair board opens the floor or explicitly asks whether any delegate wishes to second a motion or take the floor.
- Delegates must keep their cameras on, comply with the dress code, keep their microphones muted, and unmute only when they are about to speak.
- If a delegate has difficulty meeting the camera-on requirement, they must notify the model authorities.
- Diplomatic notes will be replaced by Zoom's direct chat. Delegates may send messages to one another and to the board through this resource.
- In crisis committees, directives will be submitted through a form. Once a delegate submits a directives, the chair board will review and approve it, or send corrections. Once the board approves it (an approval notification is sent by email), delegates may raise a motion to introduce a directive; if approved by the committee, the board will send a copy of the form to the Crisis Staff.
- Working papers will be drafted in a shared Google Doc accessible to all delegates and the chair board.
- If a delegate loses internet connection while speaking, the next delegate on the list will be called, and when the delegate reconnects, they may complete their speech on their next turn.
- If a member of the chair board loses internet connection, the other board member will assume moderation of the committee by office.
- When a delegate is about to exhaust their speaking time, the chair board will place a reaction in Zoom to signal that time is running out.

ART. 43. MUN MANAGER PLATFORM

The MUN MANAGER Platform will be used by the chair boards of regular committees. Through it, the board can share their screen and display to delegates the speaking timer, records of motions, and other relevant information.
